Celine dion i love you audio

Chris Watt/Mirrorpix/Getty Images Celine Dion's Because You Loved Me is probably one of the most epic wedding songs of all time. And one couple's first dance was even more epic when Celine Dion herself showed up to live. It all happened in Las Vegas earlier this week, with a little help from Jimmy Kimmel. Jason and Kate, who are both members of the Air Force stationed in Colorado, were getting married in a studio near where the Jimmy Kimmel Live host was recording an episode of his show in Las Vegas. Kimmel decided to surprise them with a change to preside over the ceremony. Next, David Spade inexplicably showed the happy couple some tequila shots. After Jimmy Kimmel declared Jason and Kate as husband and wife, Celine Dion walked into Serenade's for their first dance, and that was it. It's not the first time Celine Dion has helped play a part in the big day for her fans. In 2017, Nick Janevski popped a question to his girlfriend, Austin McMillan, during a meet and greet at one of the singer's shows in Vegas. It's a bit of a blur, but she was very nice. She said she wished us a long and happy marriage, as she had with her husband, McMillan said at the time. She complimented my ring and also asked if she could come to the wedding. Although they didn't seem to make it to their event in the end, she did give Jason and Kate a night of their own to remember. And Celine isn't the only celeb who has entered the serenade of her fans in the name of love. Taylor Swift recently helped a man propose to his friend with a rendition of The King of My Heart, and needless to say, now, does anyone know how the rest of us can book Celine Dion (.. or Taylor Swift) for our own weddings? There are only two ways to go with this. I can say every day - 'Ach my kids don't have a father, I don't have a husband, I've lost a manager,' and ask a life question all the time: 'Why?' And feel sad. Is my glass half empty or half full? I lost the man of my life. My children lost their father. I lost my manager. I lost my best friend. But he gave me confidence and now I feel complete and I have the strength to show my children that - 'Your father is gone, but he is in your heart.' 10 out of 10 Learns to live without Angéll. Dion says he's slowly recovering. It's not an easy thing to do, Dion said. It's part of life. But it was much harder for me to see my husband suffer the way he did. Now we know he's not suffering anymore. I feel fulfilled because I was with the best man, she added. He gave me so much knowledge. And he gave me three beautiful kids and I look at them and I see him every day. When I was 19, he started crying, Celine said. I knew then I did a good job. In 1991, Angéll even mortgaged her house to fund her album and took the teen and her mother on tour in Canada, Japan and Europe. 1987: Secret Romance When Dion was 19, she and Angéll went on their first official date in 1987. Although the couple started seeing each other about a year before that, she only announced her relationship five years later in the album The Color of My Love. I was afraid of what people would think, Angéll admitted of her 26-year age gap. But Celine wanted the truth out there. When you're in love, you want to scream it loud. 1991: They're Engaged In 1991, although they'd now been seeing each other for the world. But they didn't immediately appear to be very serious. When I told her, Dion recalled, When I told her, she really, really, crying feelings for René. She tried to kill him, she took me back out to the car, I was very frustrated and angry at her, but I tried to make her understand that she had to let me go because she's a free spirit. He has three children, he is not responsible. Then it was so strong that my whole family was in love with him and she had no choice. The pair eventually married in a lavish wedding ceremony at Montreal's Notre-Dame Basilica on December 17, 1994, which was broadcast live on Canadian television. 1995: Nelson and Jean-Pierre Dion start keeping growing, which was great news for the now wed couple and professional partners. (In May 1995, she won the World Music Award in Monte Carlo, Monaco.) 1997: The award and signature Song Dion version of Beauty and the Beast from an Oscar and a Grammy in 1991, but in 1997, one of her biggest hits - My Heart Will Go On from Titanic - won an Oscar for Best Original Song. 1998: Upright diabetes In 1999, the couple's world was shaken when Angéll was diagnosed with throat cancer. Despite her arduous career, Dion decided to step back and take a break to focus on her personal life and the care of her husband. Looking back on their years of marriage, the star said she definitely had a tough time. We had tensions between us. It's never easy being a husband and wife, but add that we're in business together, dealing with all the added pressures of shows, concerts, trips, travel. It was hard - a lot of hard work. Much to Angéll's celebration was declared cancer-free in 2000. The couple celebrated by renewing their wedding vows in a traditional Melkite Byzantine ceremony in Las Vegas. Of the elaborate events, Dion said, It's almost like a show, and we show business people. 2001: He's a boy! Years of demanding fertility treatment finally paid off, and Dion gave birth to son Rena Charles, the couple's first child, on January 25. The couple christened the baby that July at the Notre-Dame Basilica in Montreal - the same place where they married years earlier! 2002: Back on stage Dion was ready to continue performing, with a healthy Angéll by her side. In 2002, she released the album A New Day Has Come and announced her stay at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas. In January 2003, she kicked off the Super Bowl (pictured here) with God Bless America. 2007: Ending her Vegas Run Over four years (and 717 performances and nearly three million tickets sold) after her Caesars Palace residency began, Dion hugged Angéll and their son René-Charles at the final show on December 15, 2007. Over the years, the star said, I've had to learn to communicate again. It's a lesson that every married couple should know to bring their relationship together... We laugh. We're kidding. We inherit each other. We want our marriage to last forever. Talk about everything and you'll find out you're still on your honeymoon. 2010: Meet the twins! After several rounds of IVF, Dion and Angéll happily welcomed fraternal twins: Nelson, named for South African President Nelson Mandela, and Eddy, named for French composer Edouard Manet, arrived on October 23. My biggest reward is my kids, she said. If you're not a mom you don't know what you're missing or what it even is really... It gives you real meaning to your life and it's the most important job. Who cares if people like me as a singer or not can find other singers and there will be other singers. But no other mother can be a better mother to my children than I am. 2013: Facing cancer again, the couple were devastated once more when Angéll's cancer returned in 2013. (They gave an interview about Katie Couric's diagnosis in April 2013, pictured.) That December, he underwent surgery to remove the tumor. The next year, the singer again postponed her career to take care of her longtime love. 2015: In their last battle in August, Dion returned to perform in Las Vegas while Angéll was battling cancer at their nearby home. Not wanting to be here at first, Dion, 47, told USA Today about how her husband of 21 years pushed her to go. But Rene really gave me a gift. All my mourning, that was during this past year, I think I got it. Yet. When it hits me, it hits me. But my biggest job is to tell my husband we're okay. I'll take care of our kids. You'll be watching us from another place. Angéll, 73, had been on a feeding tube for two years, and Dion struggled to be strong during his long illness. I'll say, Are you scared? Understand. Talk to me about it, she said. And Rene tells me, I want to die in your arms. Okay, fine, I'll be there, you're going to die in my arms. 2016: Céline Dion says goodbye to her husband on January 14. Rene Angéll, 73, died this morning at his home in Las Vegas after a long and courageous battle against cancer, a representative said in a statement to People. The family is asking that their privacy be respected at the moment; further information will be provided at a later date. Angéll is survived by the couple's three children - 14, and 5-year-old twins Nelson and Eddy - and his adult children from a previous relationship, Anne-Marie, Patrick and Jean-Pierre.
